

GAINING ALTITUDE: CHALLENGES AND WINS OF WOMEN IN AVIATION – AND THE PATH AHEAD

will be presented at

International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) Headquarters, 999 Robert-Bourassa Boulevard, Montréal, Québec H3C 5H7 on Tuesday, March 5th 2019
at 18h00 in Conference Room 3 (Doors on Ground Floor open at 17h30)

by

LISA NORMAN
CAPTAIN, BOEING 787, QANTAS AIRWAYS

Captain Lisa Norman has been flying with Qantas for 30 years and has been the Manager Introduction for the Boeing 787-9 Dreamliner aircraft into Flight Operations for the past four years. During her time at Qantas, Lisa has flown a range of aircraft types, including the Boeing 747-400, Boeing 767, Airbus 330 and now Boeing 787.

After completing her Higher School Certificate, Lisa started her flying career as a Flight Instructor at Tyabb Victoria. She has also completed a Bachelor of Aviation at University of Western Sydney, studied Financial Management at University of Technology Sydney (UTS), Foreign Exchange trading, Aviation Medicine (RAAF) and external Leadership courses.

Lisa has been fortunate to lead a great team of people landing the first Qantas Dreamliner into Sydney in October 2017. She also flew Seattle to Alice Springs in a Qantas Boeing 787-9 Dreamliner with a unique indigenous livery based on artist Emily Kame Kngwarreye's Yam Dreaming artwork.

In March 2018 Lisa was a Captain on the inaugural Qantas Perth-London service (QF9), creating aviation history by joining the two continents with a non-stop flight.

Lisa currently lives in Far North Queensland and enjoys walking with her partner and two children on Palm Cove beach.

There is no charge for the Lecture but attendees are requested to pre-register by Friday, 1 March, 2019 online at <http://www.raes-montreal.org>, either on the Home webpage or the Lecture webpage.